Writing Center Is Now in Service

As the Department of Foreign Languages, we are pleased to announce the opening of the Writing Center for al our undergraduate and graduate students, as well as our academic staff. Our aim is to support the development of our students' English writing skills and to contribute to enhancing the quality of English publications produced by our academic staff.

Through an appointment-based system, our instructor will provide short one-to-one sessions for both students and academic staff. Students will receive guidance to improve their academic writing, and academic staff will have the opportunity to receive feedback on the English articles they are currently working on.

We wish the Writing Center every success and hope it will be beneficial for our university community.

Future Ready: Preparing for the Future of AI in Education

On February 6, Future Ready event on “Redefining Teaching and Learning in the Age of AI” took place at Koç University. Sefanur Onur, our Reporting and Planning Specialist, attended on behalf of the Foreign Languages Department.

The program explored how generative and agentic AI is transforming teaching and learning processes, how higher education institutions can adapt to these changes, and potential scenarios for the future.

English Language Education Specialist Sara Davila delivered a presentation on how AI tools can be applied in classroom settings and their implications for instructional practices. Dr. Paker Doğu Özdemir from MEF University focused on how AI integration in higher education can be planned at an institutional level and the steps taken to ensure sustainable change.

Participation in the Master Cookshop Event

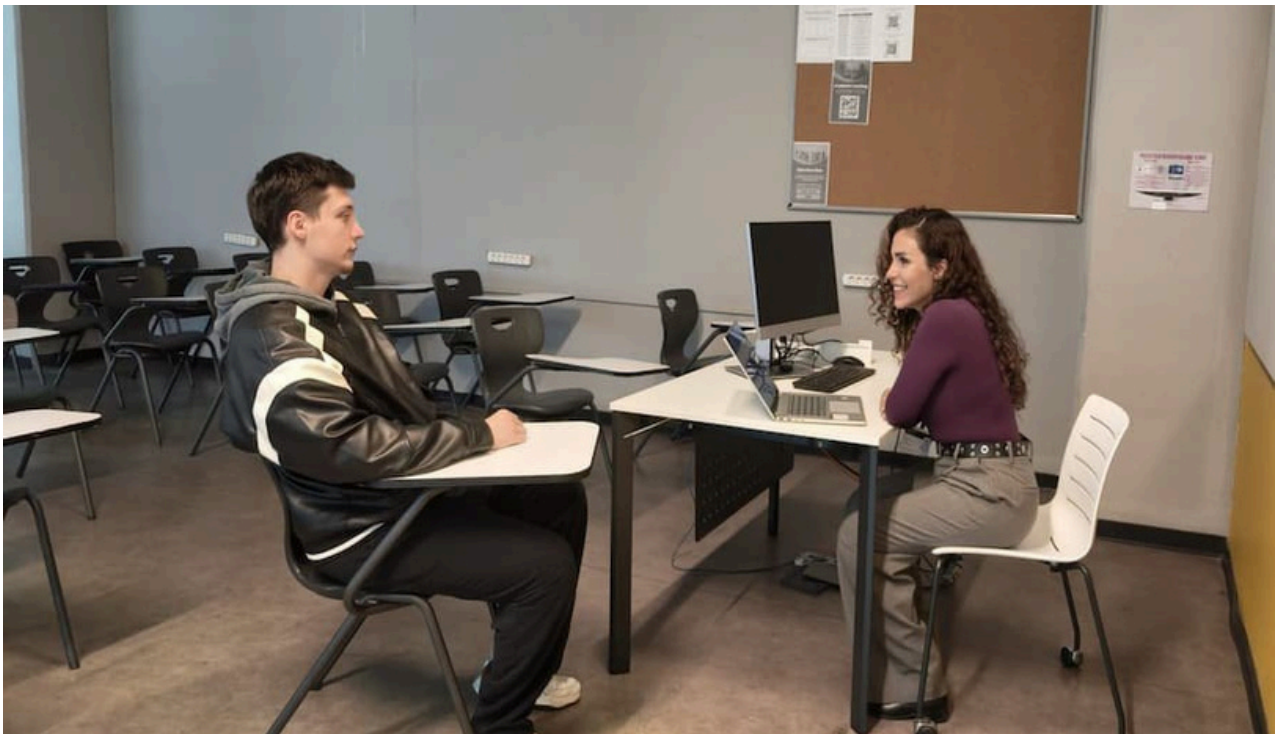

On 11 February 2026, Elvan Soytaşoğlu, one of the instructors from the School of Foreign Languages, participated in the Master Cookshop event hosted by Sabancı University. The event brought together approximately 30 academics from different universities to share insights on lesson planning processes, classroom practices, and pedagogical chalenges encountered in teaching.

Throughout the day, participants took part in interactive sessions whr they exchanged experiences and developed possible solutions to common chalenges. Within working grps designed around a “cookshop” concept, topics such as teaching materials, strategies to increase student engagement, and the effective and ethical use of artificial intelligence in education were discussed.

The event concluded with participants presenting and evaluating the work they had prepared during the sessions.

My English Coach Is Now Available for Our Students

As Foreign Languages Department, we have launched the My English Coach program for our students. This program is designed for students who think, “How can I improve my English? I don’t know where to start. I understand, but I can’t speak.”

With My English Coach, our students can have the opportunity to meet one-on-one, face-to-face with our English instructors. Our coaches will prepare a personalized study plan according to each student’s needs and goals. By working with their English coaches, students can improve their English in a more structured and effective way. This service is completely free for all our students.
